SOVIET CLAIMS NAZI DRIVE 'EXHAUSTED'

Wage Control Law Enactment Hinted 'BLITZ' BROKEN BY RED ARMY

INFLATION FEAR NOTED ANEW BY THE PRESIDENT

Continuous Meeting Of House, Senate Believed Likely In Face Of Emergency

PAY BOOSTS TO BE ASKED

O'Mahoney Expresses Need To Freeze All Factors; Farm Organizations To Aid

WASHINGTON, July 16—President Roosevelt has sounded out congressional leaders, it was learned today, on the subject of holding the House and Senate in continuous session to enact a wage control law as a means of keeping the nation from plunging into a spiral of inflation.

The subject was put up to the leaders as fear spread through the Senate that rapid rise of wages against commodity price ceilings will turn the country headlong toward inflation unless an all-out wage control program is promptly written into law.

Mr. Roosevelt put out feelers to ascertain if Congress would forego its usual Summer recess until an anti-inflation bill now being prepared could be enacted.

Work Demands Expected
Fear was expressed that all labor, organized and unorganized, will start insisting on wage increases if demands of CIO workers in the four "little steel" companies are granted by the War Labor Board.

Warning the Senate that national income is rapidly becoming greater than the value of goods available for purchase, Sen. O'Mahoney (D) Wyo., a staunch administration man, said: "We haven't begun to regulate all of the factors that go into the OPA picture. We have set price ceilings on some things and have frozen some sales, but we haven't done anything about wages, salaries and commissions. We haven't done enough about rents."

"The only alternatives are immediate action or inflation. The only logical program is freezing all of the factors which I have mentioned here."

On top of this, national farm organizations are exerting heavy pressure on both houses of Congress. (Continued on Page Three)

The successful operations by the Chinese troops against the Japanese came last Monday. "Sanguinary fighting" is taking place near Wenchow, important Chinese port, which the Japanese have captured, said the announcement.

U. S. MARINE PATROL PLANES OVER PUERTO RICO

Droning through blue Caribbean skies, six United Marine Corps scouting planes fly on patrol over one of the hill-studded islands off Puerto Rico. These eyes in the skies are on the constant alert to spot the shark-like shadow of an Axis submarine on the prow.

War Bulletins

VALDOSTA, Ga. — Army authorities today investigated the crash of four two-passenger training ships near Madison, Fla., yesterday which resulted in the death of seven British air cadets and one United States officer. The American officer killed in the crashes was identified as Lt. Samuel T. King, of Egypt, Miss. Identity of the British cadets was not immediately learned.

PHILADELPHIA — War production was resumed today in two Philadelphia plants of the Electric Storage Battery company after officials agreed to "adjust" the grievances of 3,300 employees who staged a one-day walkout.

WASHINGTON — Agriculture department announced today that farm products approaching a value of $1,500,000,000 have been purchased for lend-lease and other requirements in the last 15½ months.

WASHINGTON — Merchant shipbuilding today is hitting the stride demanded by President Roosevelt early this year for two-year production capacity of 2,300 big, ocean-going vessels. Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the Maritime commission, said that newly constructed shipyards will boost total production for 1943 to at least 23,000,000 deadweight tons, 2,000,000 above the President's two-year goal.

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — No activity was reported today in the southwest Pacific area. Japanese operations were limited to reconnaissance flights, said a communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

FORD BUILDING GALLOWES, AND IT'S FOR MR. HITLER

DETROIT, July 16—Detroit's wizard of production, Henry Ford, today was disclosed to be handling an "order" for Hitler.

Four King Scouts, veterans of the battle of Britain, were being conducted through Ford's Greenfield Village and viewed the cars which the motor magnate built for J. P. Morgan and Kaiser Wilhelm. Suddenly, 17-year-old Hugh Bright of Scotland asked:

"You haven't anything for Hitler, have you?"

"O yes," jokingly replied Ford. "We're building a gallows now and it will be ready soon."

HARVEST RESUMES

AAA officials said Thursday that most wheat farmers in this area were able to begin extensive harvesting Wednesday afternoon. Wet weather had prevented combining for two weeks.

Nazi Agents Sat in Rail Depot Five Hours After 'Invasion', FBI Reports

WASHINGTON, July 16—Evidence in the hands of government attorneys prosecuting the eight Nazi saboteurs before a military commission in Washington today shows that four of the spies escaped immediate capture after they were landed, because military authorities failed to search a railroad station at Amagansett, L. I., following the "invasion" alarm.

Some of the secrecy surrounding the landing of four of the German agents on Amagansett beach from a Nazi submarine was dispelled by an official Coast Guard statement which disclosed that a coast guardsman actually stumbled into them as they were coming ashore. The guardsman, 21-year-old John C. Cullen, of Bayside, L. I., was unarmed at the time.

The Coast Guard statement said that Cullen reported the landing promptly to his superiors and the Coast Guard, Army and Navy conducted a hunt for the saboteurs for hours without notifying the FBI. Later, the FBI tracked down not only the four spies who landed at Long Island but four others who were landed by submarine on the Florida coast.

467 SAVED FROM TWO SHIPS SENT DOWN IN OCEAN

By International News Service
Eleven lives were lost and 467 passengers and crew members were safe in United States ports today as a large British merchantman and a medium-sized American vessel were added to the wartime toll of allied nation's ship losses through enemy action.

Only nine lives were lost as 372 passengers and crew members of the American vessel were saved when the ship was torpedoed and sunk within four minutes in the Atlantic ocean, according to the Navy department's announcement.

The nine victims included seven members of the crew and two passengers. Three of the survivors were women, and 51 of the passengers were injured when the torpedo crashed into the port side of the vessel.

Leon Francis Hart, the ill-fated ship's first officer, attributed the speedy rescue to the calmness of the passengers, constant lifeboat drills and efficient work by a United States naval vessel which picked up the survivors.

In the other sinking announced by the Navy department, two of the 97 survivors of the British merchantman died of injuries and were buried at sea from lifeboats.

TRUCKER FALLS OUT OF DOOR, BREAKS SHOULDER

George Starkey of Pickaway township suffered a shoulder fracture Wednesday evening when he fell through the door of his truck. Starkey was cleaning the truck when he fell. He was given overnight treatment in Berger hospital and was removed Thursday to Chillicothe.

STRAY DOG HURTS BOY

Johnny Hampp, 3, son of Mrs. Eva Hampp, 385 Town street, was treated in Berger hospital Wednesday for a dog bite on his right hand, the wound having been inflicted when he tried to pet a stray dog.

Refugee Says Germans Control All of Italy

DETROIT, July 16—Italians are faring miserably under Nazi domination although their country is a German ally, a Greek refugee who escaped to the United States via Rome declared in an interview with the Detroit Times today.

The refugee, whose own country is overrun by Nazi hordes, must remain unidentified because of fear of reprisal against his family still in Greece.

"You cannot imagine Rome today," he told the Times. "There are 50,000 Nazi soldiers in the capital. They hold all airports, all channels of communications, railroads and key spots in defense plants."

"They live in Rome's best hotels, they fill Rome's restaurants until there is no place for Italians. They force Italians to

'SECOND FRONT' NIGHTMARE FOR CHIEF OF NAZIS

Fuehrer Can Only Guess When, Where Allies Will Attack

FIVE FACTORS SCANNED

Germans Building Mighty Defenses Along All Invasion Coasts

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The rising clamor for opening of a second front in Europe makes timely the following exclusive dispatch disclosing the frantic preparations made by Nazi Germany to combat the thrust when it comes.)

By JOHN E. LEE
LONDON, July 16—Caught in his massive war with Russia, Adolf Hitler is preparing feverishly today against opening of a second front in Europe.

When the blow may fall—whether this year or next—he cannot know. But he has plenty of evidence that it may come, including the American-British-Russian understanding that a second front in Europe is urgently needed.

This vision of a second front is Hitler's nightmare. It is a drawn sword pointed at his heart. He can only guess where and how it may strike. But he knows:

1—Thousands of American troops are in Great Britain and northern Ireland—not for a vacation.

2—British troops in these islands constantly are expanding and undergoing offensive training.

3—American and British war equipment is piling up ready for use.

4—A powerful United States naval task force is attached to the British home fleet.

5—The British public—or at least a highly vocal part of it—has been screaming for action.

Hitler also knows that the greatest air blows in history—the 1,000-plane RAF raids on his own production centers—already have been written into the bloody record of this war. He knows first-hand what such raids can achieve in softening up his war machine.

U. S. To Join Soon

He has been told he can expect more of the same. It is no secret to him that sooner or later the United States Air Force will participate in these raids on an ever-increasing scale. Already American bombers have hammered Odesa and the Romanian oil center of Ploesti as well as occupied Holland on the Fourth of July.

If the second front talk had been designed simply as a campaign in the war of nerves, it could scarcely have been more effective. Hitler is doing his utmost to make himself impregnable. Information trickles into London of his defensive preparations, his troop concentrations in (Continued on Page Three)

Ex-Guardsman Held

W. G. Spiegelberg, 35, above, German-born former member of the United States Coast Guard, has been arrested in Hempstead, L. I., on an espionage charge, it has been announced by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI said he had plans of the B-24 bomber in his possession.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN OHIO BLAST

Cincinnati Garage Struck; Damage To Be $300,000; Xavier Buildings Hit

CINCINNATI, July 16—A terrific explosion which crumbled a downtown auto rental garage, rocked the city and shattered hundreds of windows in a radius of many blocks, today left four persons dead, and 13 others injured. Killed were:

Police Sgt. Carl Hille, 36, who was answering a call at the garage, scene of the blast.

Albert Bass, 34, who was returning a rented automobile when the blast let go.

John Rehe, 49, garage bookkeeper.

Perry Fell, Negro attendant.

Authorities reported a preliminary investigation indicated the blast was caused when gasoline was ignited by an electric switch. Kenneth Bottorff, accompanying Bass, was reported near death at Cincinnati General hospital. A number of others injured were said to be in critical condition.

Thousands were nearby when the explosion came as theatres were dismissing crowds at the shows late last night. Traffic was congested for blocks and police (Continued on Page Three)

CHEMICAL FIRM SHUTDOWN MAY FOLLOW STRIKE

EVERETT, Mass., July 16—Monsanto Chemical company, engaged in producing essential war materials, faced complete shutdown today as 180 key workers struck over the question of union membership.

The plants manufacture chemicals used by industries producing everything from uniforms and blankets to munitions and airplane parts.

The strike, called suddenly by officials of the Chemical Workers' Union, A. F. of L., and affecting approximately 1,000 employees, was declared "illegal" by John J. Murphy, New England regional officer for the American Federation of Labor. War Labor Board action is expected.

The dispute hinged on a demand for a maintenance of a membership clause in a new contract.

MORE DOCTORS NEEDED

WASHINGTON, July 16 — In an effort to obtain 20,000 additional doctors for the nation's expanding Army by the end of this year, the War department today increased the number of medical officers recruiting boards in five states. Two additional boards each have been authorized in New York, Pennsylvania and California, and one each in Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois. One board is functioning in each of the other states.

Red Star Publishes Front-Line Dispatch Which Says Steel Wall Of Resistance, Timely Counter-Attacks Halt Reich

FOE ON DEFENSIVE IN SOME AREAS

Moscow Reports Dive-Bombers Score Heavy Blows On Transports In Baltic Action; Benghazi, Tobruk Hit By Allies

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Nazi Germany's attempted "blitzkrieg" offensive on the Don river front has definitely been broken, the Soviet army newspaper Red Star announced today.

In official confirmation of front-line dispatches indicating that the major force of Adolf Hitler's drive had exhausted itself against the steel wall of Soviet resistance and well-timed counter-attacks, Red Star said:

1—The German armies in general are no longer making progress.

2—In some areas the enemy has been placed on the defensive.

Red Star is the official newspaper of the Russian armies, edited under supervision of the People's Commissariat for War and has invariably presented an unbiased, truthful picture of the military situation, good or bad.

In normal times, it is read only by the 12,000,000 soldiers of the Russian army, but since the Nazi invasion of Russia 13 months ago has been seized on by foreign residents of the Soviet Union and diplomatic observers as perhaps the most reliable source of information on the progress of the war.

Thus it was with great jubilation that Red Star's issue of today confirming that Hitler's great Summer "blitz" had at least been stemmed was snatched up from street-corner kiosks and grasped from the hands of wildly yelling newsboys.

Red Star said: "In some places the enemy has been pushed back to river crossings and in some places forced on the defensive."

"North of Voronezh, Soviet counter-attacks resulted in weakening of pressure by the Germans, who have been forced onto the defensive."

"Their attempts to by-pass Voronezh town and to cross the Voronezh river have failed."

Axis Convoy Wrecked

At the same time, there was great joy over announcement by the Moscow radio that Soviet dive-bombers swinging into action over the Baltic had surprised a convoy of small axis ships rushing supplies to the battlefronts and sank ten of them. A number of others were damaged.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Exchange Telegraph company in London quoted the Moscow radio as stating that Soviet planes had sunk a German transport and blown up several ammunition dumps in an unnamed axis harbor.)

The German high command itself conceded strong Soviet counter-attacks. In sharp contrast to its July 7 claim that Voronezh had been captured, the Nazi general staff admitted violent Russian thrusts at the Don river bridgehead from which the German armies launched their initial attack on the important rail city.

On the Egyptian battlefield the British Eighth Army extended its positions on the ridge south of El Alamein and then smashed German-Italian counter-attacks.

The middle east command communique revealed today that Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's assault on the Tel El Eisa (Hill) (Continued on Page Three)

KNOTS TIED WITH LEFT HAND AID SUICIDE DECREE

NEW YORK, July 16—A series of "left-hand" knots tied in a rope which bound his neck, hands and feet, today established as an "ingenious" suicide, the death of Robert Shook, 21-year-old war worker.

When Shook was found hanging from the post of his bed, police at first suspected he might have been murdered by spies or saboteurs because of his work as a blueprint reader for the Sperry Gyroscope company, manufacturers of precision war instruments.

Later, however, it was learned that Shook was left-handed and examination of the knots indicated they were tied with the left hand. Police believe Shook first bound himself when lying on the bed and then rolled off to tighten the noose about his neck.

GASOLINE THIEF FACES 10 MONTHS IN PRISON

WICKFORD, R. I., July 16—Wilfred A. Palmer, 43, started a ten-month jail sentence today—a month for every gallon of gasoline he was charged with stealing. Judge Stephen J. Casey described Palmer's act "a defiant insult when our boys are in foreign lands bleeding and dying to save his home and ours."

5,000,000 NEW TIRES WILL BE BUILT IN 1943

Everything Must "Click",
Though, WPB Official
Points Out

FAR BELOW NORMAL TOTAL

Production Of Synthetic Supply May Be Surprise,
One Builder Says

WASHINGTON, July 16 — A high War Production Board official said today that it may be possible to produce 5,000,000 new tires during 1943 for "essential" civilian needs, if everything "clicks" in the nation's synthetic rubber program.

He reiterated, however, that there would be no rubber for pleasure motoring and ordinary civilian use, pointing out that the figure represented only a small portion of the United States' normal annual consumption of 30,000,000 new tires.

The WPB official's remarks were made after President W. S. Farish of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey told a House subcommittee that new "flexon" and "quick butadiene" synthetic rubber processes before the end of 1943 will produce 34,000,000 more automobile tires than were expected.

Present stockpile of new tires in the country is estimated at 7,000,000. These are being rationed by the Office of Price Administration, however, with nearly 350,000 allocated for essential civilian needs during July.

With the new tires to be produced from synthetic rubber, tires drawn from the existing stockpile and retreads, WPB officials hope that it will be possible to maintain essential civilian transportation—fire and police departments, health needs, and war workers.

20 Millions Needed

The Brookings Institution estimated recently that 20,000,000 cars are essential to the maintenance of the civilian economy, as compared with more than 25,000,000 passenger vehicles now in operation. In addition, some 5,000,000 trucks must be supplied with tires.

In forecasting a possible production of 5,000,000 tires next year from synthetic rubber, the WPB official emphasized that such an output was contingent on successful progress of the synthetic program according to present plans and expectations.

The 800,000-ton program, he said, has now been "frozen" as to plants and the processes which they will employ, in order to avoid further delays and get into production as quickly as possible.

WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson told a Senate committee that 700,000 tons of the program would proceed on the following basis: 200,000 tons from alcohol, 20,000 tons from benzene, and the rest from petroleum. The balance of the program is expected to be allocated to latex, neoprene, and other synthetics unsuitable for tires.

Nelson said the decision to proceed under present plans did not exclude encouragement or assistance to continued technological developments.

"If it should later be determined that the present program must be expanded to meet requirements, then ensuing technological developments will be most carefully weighed and will share a part in the program, if shown to be merited," Nelson said.

MARTINS FERRY YOUTH DIED IN ISLES MISHAP

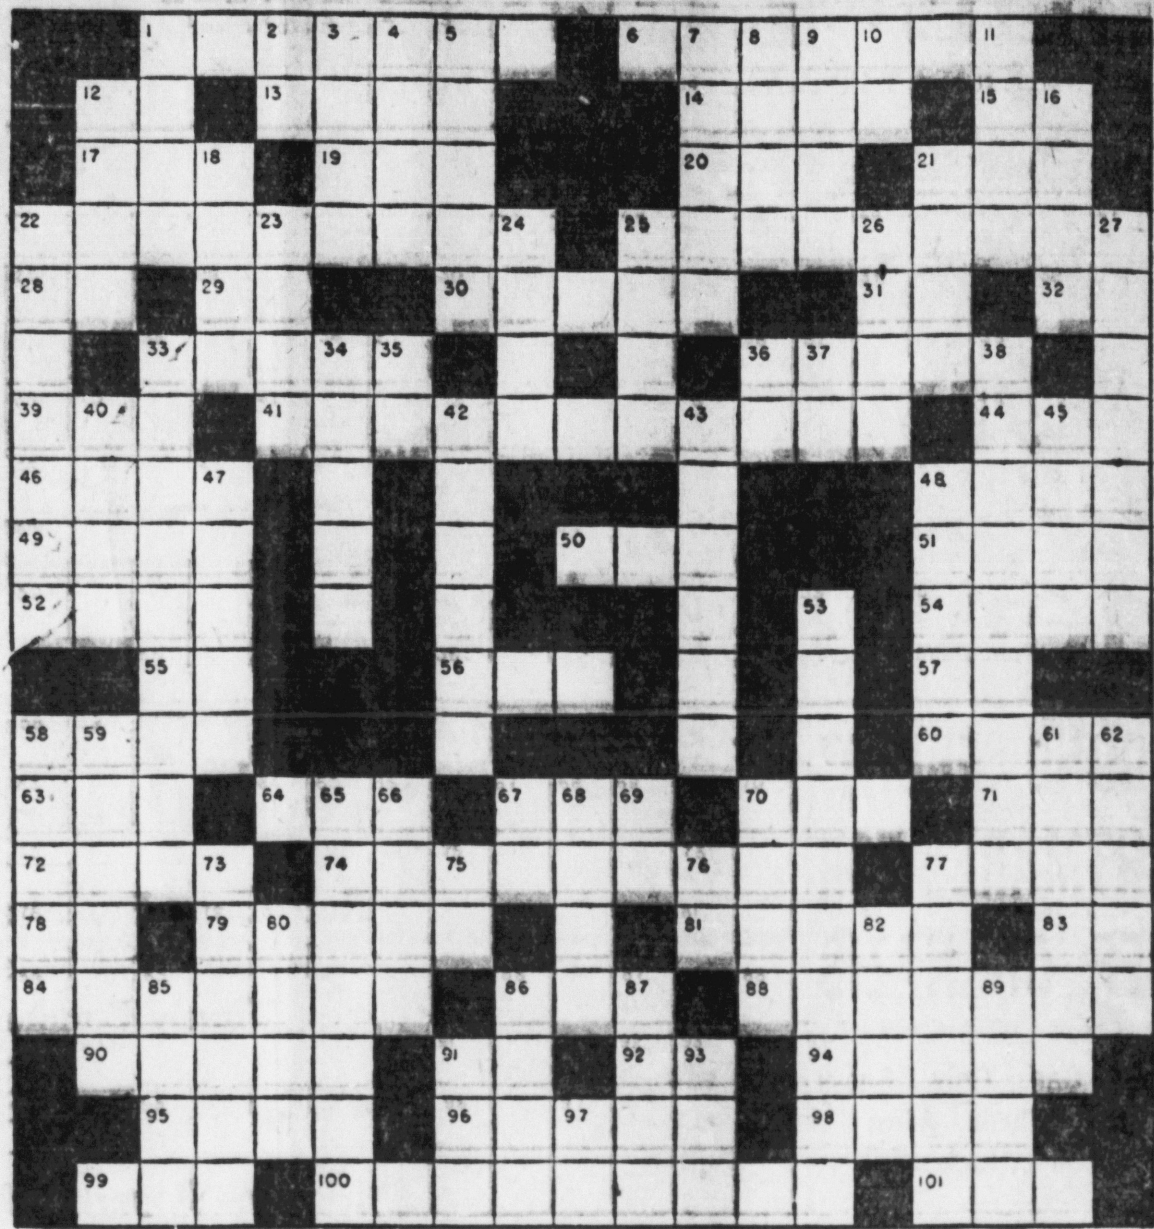

MARTINS FERRY, July 16—Sgt. Bernard McLaughlin, 20, of Martins Ferry, was killed July 13, in a traffic accident in the British Isles, the family was notified today by the war department.

TAX RECEIPTS OFF

A report on sales tax receipts for the first period of July indicate another large drop in revenue from sales in the county. During the first 11 days of the month the stamps have netted $2,307.43. In the same period of last year the amount was $2,795.11. This drop of nearly $500 for the period is a continuation of gradual declines for the last six months which are accounted for by curtailment of auto and other sales.

CANNING PLANT WORKERS NEEDED, U. S. OFFICE SAYS

Canneries in this area are going to require a total of about 600 workers to process the fruit and vegetable crops, according to Ralph E. Gabele, manager of the Columbus office of the United States Employment Service.

"Men and women available for work in canneries are urged to register at once with the Employment Service office in Circleville," Gabele said. "They will be needed around Monday, July 27, and the work will last from nine to ten weeks. Wages are very favorable."

"The government asked the farmers to produce more food than ever before, the canneries to process more food. It is now up to all of us to see that enough workers are supplied to wash, peel, pack, label and crate the farm products. More women are needed this year for canning work, and these women not only will be helping themselves by earning extra money, but they will be doing a patriotic service because food is most important in the winning of this war."

'SECOND FRONT' NIGHTMARE FOR CHIEF OF NAZIS

Fuehrer Can Only Guess When, Where Allies Will Attack

the west, his elaborate fortifications along the European coast. It also tells of his frantic repressive measures in the occupied countries, which now seeth with impatience and rebellion against him.

One of Hitler's most recent precautions is the evacuation of civilians from the Dieppe-Boulogne region of the French coast. This was undertaken to prevent residents of that area from aiding British Commandos during their sudden raids.

The Nazis also are training a number of formidable anti-commando units in the Pas De Calais region of France.

Belgians May Help

Populations of several districts along the Belgian coast are being evacuated, according to information from Stockholm. The Tass (Soviet) news agency stated flatly the Germans feared the Belgians would assist American and British troops if the latter landed on the European continent.

Similar evacuation measures have been carried out in various parts of Norway, where German garrisons are being reinforced.

These are but a few of the preparations that betray anxiety of the German high command over the possible opening of a second front.

Other German moves indicate the same trend. One significant Nazi defense measure is that guns of the French Maginot line have been turned around to defend Germany.

The western defenses are now manned by thousands of German soldiers ready for instant action. One report places their number at 30 divisions. Most of these forces are concentrated in France and Belgium and include strong armored units.

Thousands At Work

Soldiers and workmen by the thousands are laboring on the 2,000-mile coastline of Norway, the low countries and occupied France. They are building pill boxes, tank traps and gun emplacements, some of which extend back as much as 50 miles from the coast.

Military authorities in Great Britain naturally are maintaining reserve on the question of an invasion of Europe or establishment of a second front.

But everyone here knows that the concentration of American troops on this side of the Atlantic is increasing.

Everyone knows that strong British, Canadian, Polish, Free French, Belgian and Czechoslovakian forces are an important part of their drill.

changed Cullen and gave him only $260.

When Cullen made his report and a search was started, an object about 70 feet long was observed about 150 feet offshore and it was presumably a submarine.

Cullen is reported to have heard the noise of powerful Diesel engines just offshore.

Fearing that an invasion attempt was about to be made on the coast, officials woke up other coast guardsmen and armed them with rifles. They hurried to the beach but the Germans were gone.

The heavy fog-swallowed up the ship and the noise died away, the statement said, with the sub heading off in an easterly direction.

FBI Called Then

Later, the searchers found four buried boxes of dynamite and other sabotage material, together with parts of uniforms which showed they belonged to the Nazis.

The Army and Navy were notified and the boxes taken to the Coast Guard barge office in New York.

It was not until after that time, the Coast Guard said, that the FBI was notified.

While the sabotage trial entered its eighth day with the prospect it would not end until late next week, Justice department officials planned to announce sometime in the day how they will prosecute 14 alleged "contacts" of the spies who have been apprehended.

FOUR LOSE LIVES IN OHIO BLAST

reserves were called to handle the crowds.

Hundreds of telephone calls poured into newspaper offices and police stations, from persons who thought there had been an earthquake, or possibly an enemy bombing.

A preliminary estimate gave the damage as approximately $300,000. St. Xavier Commercial high school and the downtown building of the Xavier University evening division, opposite the scene of the blast, were partially wrecked.

The body of Sgt. Hill was blown 200 feet across the street into a parking lot adjoining the Xavier grounds.

Autos on the upper floors of the garage were hurled to the street. Police quoted Bottorff as saying that when he and Bass entered the garage they saw a pool of gasoline on the floor and were told by a white attendant that a Negro employee had bumped into a gasoline tank when parking a car.

Persons near the garage said they first saw a great flash of light, then heard the roar of the explosion and felt the earth shake, for some time afterwards a dense pall of smoke hovered about the area.

2,200 GUARDS BEGIN TRAINING NEXT SUNDAY

Ohio State Unit To Use Two Former CCC Camps In Hill Country

PANCOAST IS PLEASED

Chief Says Terrain About Hocking And Zaleski Perfect For Drills

COLUMBUS, July 16—The rugged terrain surrounding former CCC Camps Hocking and Zaleski, where half of Ohio's 2,200 state guardsmen will move in Sunday for a week of ultra-intensive training, is perfectly suited to the type of guerrilla warfare in which they will specialize, Adjutant Gen. Donald F. Pancoast declared today.

"The sites are much better for our purposes than Camp Perry in every way," General Pancoast declared on a tour with an aide and three newspapermen.

"Perry is probably the best rifle range in the world, but it is as flat as the palm of your hand. It has no trees, no cover, no variety of terrain. At Hocking and Zaleski we can teach our troops to make the ground their friend, and that can save their lives.

"We can teach them to take cover, to make use of every bush, every tree, every little depression. And we are not fooling; this training is needed, and that is no pipe-dream.

To Combat Invasion

"A look at a globe will show that we in industrial Ohio are as close by air to Axis bombing bases as the east coast if the enemy should choose to come over the top of the world. We must prepare to combat any attempted airborne invasion by parachute troops and hold them until regular troops can arrive. That, with our lack of artillery and aircraft, is almost a sacrifice job. Our only hope lies in guerrilla warfare; in perfecting ourselves in hand-to-hand, chest-to-chest combat."

General Pancoast pointed out that all training of troops has only one test—its success in battle.

"Hence we will not bother with close-order drill or any other form of training that can be done as well in the armory," he stated, "there will be no parade-ground maneuvers, except perhaps one review when Gov. Bricker inspects us. This terrain provides the ultimate in training facilities and we intend to make the most of it."

As he spoke the general waved his hand toward the rugged hills surrounding Camp Hocking—hills covered with scrub, young pine and hardwoods, divided by streams and valleys, slashed by fissures and jagged with outcroppings of rock.

Both Camp Hocking, where brigade headquarters will be established, and Camp Zaleski, 20 miles southeast, are being expanded to care for 550 men for each eight-day training period. Double-deck bunks are being installed; field kitchens under canvas will augment present cooking facilities; extra sanitary facilities are being rushed to completion.

The schedule calls for the training to get under way with a thorough study of training films provided by the regular army. Then individuals will be taught guerrilla warfare, then squads and platoons, then companies and battalions.

Maneuvers At Night

Finally, a week from tomorrow night, will come the climax of the first period's training—night maneuvers. The full regiment will advance in total darkness against a mythical enemy, under simulated attack by civil air patrol planes. General Pancoast and his staff will act as umpires.

Camp Hocking, in the midst of the Hocking county scenic region and close to Old Man's Cave, will play host the first period, beginning Sunday and extending to July 26, to guard units from Akron, Canton, Youngstown, Warren, Cleveland, Mansfield, Norwalk, Findlay, Napoleon and Bucyrus.

Camp Zaleski, just north of the Vinton county community of the same name, will be the headquarters for units from Columbus, Chillicothe, Athens, Coshocton, Lancaster, London, Delaware, Marysville, Marion, Marietta, Zanesville, and Westerville.

For the second training period, from July 26 to August 2, the units at Camp Hocking will be those from Washington C. H., Cleveland and Columbus, while troops from Cincinnati, Eaton, Hamilton, Manchester, Hillsboro, Xenia, Kenton, Sidney and Lima will be at Camp Zaleski. All troops will travel by bus.

GOOD PRICES PREVAIL AT WEEKLY STOCK SALE

Good prices prevailed at the Wednesday auction market of the Pickaway Livestock Association with receipts being fairly heavy.

Hogs made the best showing with receipts totaling 353 head and the top grades receiving $14.90.

Cattle receipts were fairly light with prices dropping a little from the last week standard. Only 69 head of calves were placed on the auction block but 'good to choice' animals in this class brought $15.30 a hundred. The entire program this week indicates that livestock prices are definitely up and sales are expected to increase as soon as farmers complete their annual harvest.

AKRON ARRESTS KINSEY STORE THEFT SUSPECT

Circleville Merchant Finds
Delbert Spicer Wearing
Own Trousers

MAN TO GO TO F. B. I.
Father Of Jailed Man Held
In Campbell County, Ky.;
Clothes Recovered

Another arrest in the recent robbery of the I. W. Kinsey store has been announced by Deputy Bryan Custer, who with Mr. Kinsey and Prosecutor George Gerhardt, went to Akron this week where they investigated Delbert Spicer, arrested there recently and held on suspicion of robbery.

Last week a plain clothes detective in that city suspicioned the 31 year old man from Newport, Kentucky, and, after a wild car chase through the city, he was apprehended and cited for investigation. Meanwhile, local authorities were notified of his arrest and journeyed to the city in an attempt to link the man with the robbery gang.

At a cabin in the vicinity Custer reported that numerous articles, including clothes from San Francisco, were found and it is believed that the building was used as headquarters for some 15 men who are expected to be arrested in the near future.

Spicer was questioned by four Akron detectives and by Custer. As the men were seated around a table Mr. Kinsey noticed a pair of pants Spicer was wearing at the time and recognized them as his own. They had been made in a special order from a clothing company.

After feeling the material and examining the size and design Kinsey told the suspect, "Say, you've got my pants on." The trousers were identified as part of the loot taken from the local store, but Spicer refused to reveal where he had obtained them. He is to be turned over to FBI authorities for handling the stolen goods interstate.

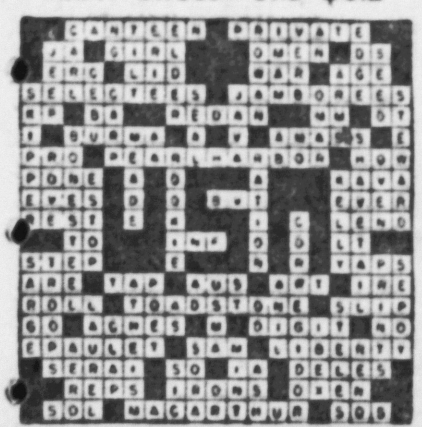

Many of Mr. Kinsey's suits were found several weeks ago in Cincinnati.

Police officials of Campbell county, Kentucky, arrested Spicer's father, James Spicer, 54, Wednesday on charges of receiving stolen goods. He was cited on information received from his son and a raid on the home uncovered three more suits belonging to the Kinsey store.

The raid on the Spicer home was asked by Mr. Kinsey who drove to Newport from Akron when he was told that Spicer's wife, who lives in Newport, might have taken the trousers found in Akron to her husband.

The clothing found there was identified by the store operator and the elder Spicer was held under $1,000 bond by Kentucky authorities.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about a pint a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DUNTON TO CLOSE HIS FEDERAL REPORT OFFICE

Columbus branch of the Office of Government Reports in the old federal building will be discontinued July 31, James G. Dunton, of Circleville, field representative for Ohio, reported Thursday.

Closing of the office is a part of the reorganization of government information services which recently were combined by executive order of the President to form the Office of War Information under the direction of Elmer Davis. Functions of the office will be transferred to various new OWI bureaus.

FIGHTING HENDERSON

LEON Henderson, price administrator, has found tough going lately among the political snares and economic marshes of Washington, D. C. Every time he makes a move to do the work that he was appointed to do, and that most of the American people want him to do, he is attacked as if he were an enemy alien trying to pull down the Capitol or to destroy American agriculture. Actually he is trying hard to keep prices steady and reasonable, and avoid runaway inflation that would ruin everybody.

Neither the special interest of economic groups nor the efforts of thwarted politicians should be allowed to interfere with such a task. The only proper policy at such a time is tolerant cooperation — "each for all and all for each."

RECORD-BREAKERS

AMERICANS sometimes think that ours are the best athletes in the world. Perhaps they are, but not in all cases. Gunnar Hagg, a Swede, has cut eight seconds off the world's record for the two-mile run, on top of breaking the mile record only two days previously.

For a long time wisecracks said that no one would ever run two miles in better than nine minutes. That has been disproved on several occasions, but never so resoundingly as by Hagg, with his mark of 8 minutes, 47.8 seconds. Another Swede, Arne Andersson, also broke the existing mark in the same race, though running second to Hagg.

Finns like Paavo Nurmi used to be champion long-distance runners. Their neighbors, the Swedes, appear now to be crowding them out. Whether or not there is anything in the climate in that part of the world to make for great speed over long distances, this is one branch of athletics in which Americans lag behind.

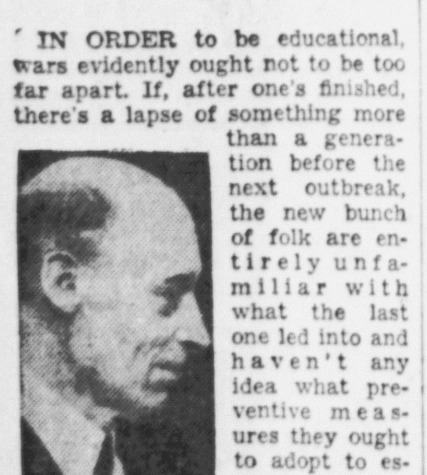

LONG RACE AHEAD

WHEN the Russians were throwing back the Nazis and the British were bombing German towns heavily, nearly everyone was set for an end of the war in 1942, or 1943 at the latest. Now Rommel in Africa and German gains in Russia, far beyond the farthest point reached in 1941, are making Americans pessimistic.

Of the two moods, pessimism is better. Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court put it wisely the other day when he said: "The error of putting an early date on the collapse of our enemies is twofold. First, it creates a dangerous, Maginot Line psychology; second, it may prepare us for a 200-yard dash when a grueling mile race lies ahead of us."

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Charles P. Stewart

IN ORDER to be educational, wars evidently ought not to be too far apart. If, after one is finished, there is a lapse of something more than a generation between outbreaks, the new bunch of folk are entirely unfamiliar with what the last one led into and haven't any idea what preventive measures they ought to adopt to escape a repetition (if possible) of the same old post-conflict suffering that their predecessors experienced.

War isn't so uncomfortable except to its immediate victims. These latter, of course, include, besides those in active service, getting shot or subjected to the fighting fronts' hardships, inhabitants of areas that actually are being devastated.

they'll have the luck to die voluntarily, while hostilities still are raging. And, in general, the atmosphere is peppy. Air raid rehearsals are enjoyable. It's lively and pleasant. Personally I don't want to see it stop in my time. It goes without saying, I guess, that I speak paragonically.

It's after the war is over, after the dance is done, that hedges start. Gosh knows it did, following an interval, as a sequel to the 1914-18 performance.

The secession war's aftermath had been forgotten by that time, and we hadn't had anything of much consequence subsequently. My father used to tell me of the depression of '73, but what did America's 1920 economy know about it?

This time, though, the post-1918 period's an acute recollection in business circles. "Never again," is the practical industrialist's motto. It never occurred to him in the 19-teens because he hadn't been through it. The warning's to be heard from every direction.

Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce constantly.

I classed these chaps as ultra-conservatives, and accurately so, I believe. A lot of mightily advanced economic sentiment was in the air then. Whenever I felt that a bit of darned moderate dope was desirable then, for variety, it was my system to interview one of these spokesmen. All of 'em were all okay—good Americans, but cautious. They hadn't had time to have assimilated what the 1914-18 war had done to their interests. Nevertheless, it soaked in presently.

It's Different Now
Go see President William P. Withrow of the National Association of Manufacturers now. Or President Eric A. Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

In comparison with their predecessors of two decades ago they're radicals. They're just as much businessmen as ever in past history, but they're not of the old-fashioned pattern. They're for good terms with labor. They're "pro" the buying public.

Naturally a producer always has wanted to suit his customers. Now, though, he isn't thinking of his customer of the moment; he's thinking of him on into futurity. The bird's reckoning is prophetic. What the post-war effect's will be remains to be seen. It's a new kind of a generation, anyway.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

AMERICANS SHARE BLAME

WASHINGTON: Inside factors causing the defeat in Libya show that American generals must shoulder a share of the blame.

It is true that the British went in for too much tea and cricket; and that British generalship was ponderous, with too much backstage huddling by Cairo and London.

But, in addition, the big factor which hurt the British was that American tanks sent to Egypt carried only a 75 mm. gun, which had to compete with the Nazis' 88mm. gun. The mere size of the gun does not tell the whole story, however. The old French 75, mainstay of the Allies in the First World War, shoots in a parabola. The projectile goes up and then down. Its destructive force comes from the explosion when it hits. But the 88mm. gun used by the Germans is an anti-aircraft gun which is built to shoot straight up in the air with terrific force. Therefore, when the powerful anti-aircraft guns are turned against tanks, and shoot straight ahead, it is easy to imagine the havoc they wreak.

But the amazing thing was that neither the British nor American generals had planned ahead long enough to meet this German gun. They had known about it for some time, but still they were putting 75mm. guns in our tanks.

As to why the change had not been made, that is the Army's secret. But a representative of Chrysler, now making Army tanks, was asked:

"Why don't you put something stronger in place of the 75's? And why don't you make the turrets so that they revolve in every direction?"

To which the Chrysler man replied: "If we ask too many questions, we are penalized by losing out on the next contract."

PROFESSOR VS SUBS

Governor Rex Tugwell of Puerto Rico was flying from his post to the British island of Jamaica a short time ago, and just before he stepped into the plane, the young naval pilot said:

"I don't suppose we'll see anything. But we might as well be ready just in case."

So they loaded the plane with half a dozen depth charges. It was a small transport plane, had no regular bomb bay, so the depth charges were merely placed on the seats.

Out over the Caribbean, suddenly the pilot looked down, said, "There she is." Below them with its conning tower above water, was a Nazi submarine.

Both the pilot and Governor Tugwell reached for the depth charges, opened the window. But before they could drop even one, the submarine had submerged. The ex-braintruster came home with no submarine scalp in his professional belt.

Wide Variety of Opinions on Doctors Found in Classics

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EVERYONE SEEMS to be reviewing H. L. Mencken's recently published Dictionary of Quotations on Historical Principles. Since this is the only dictionary of quotations in which I have ever appeared, I have been very much interested in them, although I don't especially like what one review said, "Quotations are included if made by anybody, including the cop on the corner, Shakespeare, and ibid." I don't mind being associated with the cop on the corner, but I don't like that "anybody and ibid."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Sample Quotations

Mr. Mencken has always had a good nose for medical matters and from the Dictionary, I quote as follows:

"We are bound to our bodies like an oyster to its shell."—Plato. "Dermatology is the best specialty. The patient never dies, and never gets well."

—Author unidentified. "Nature, in the production of disease, is uniform and consistent, so much so, that for the same disease in different persons the symptoms are for the most part the same; and the selfsame phenomena that you would observe in the sickness of a Socrates you would observe in the sickness of a simpleton."—Thomas Sydenham.

"Disease is very old and nothing about it has changed. It is we who change as we learn to recognize what was formerly imperceptible."—J. M. Charcot.

"Natural forces within us are the true healers of disease."—Hippocrates.

"Because all the sick do not recover, therefore medicine is no art."—Cicero.

"Medicine is a conjectural art. It has almost no rules."—Aulus Cornelius Celsus.

"Nearly all men die of their medicines, not of their diseases."—Moliere.

Told by So-and-So

"There is a common argument that is both false and fatal. 'So-and-so,' one hears, 'has been cured by such-and-such a treatment, and I have his disease; ergo, I must try his remedy.' How many people die by reasoning thus! What they overlook is that the diseases which afflict us are as different as the features of our faces."—Voltaire.

"Take a dose of medicine once, and in all probability you will be obliged to take an additional 100 afterward."—Napoleon.

W. E. G.—How can a doctor determine whether a patient has mastitis of the breast? Does the fact that the lump is loose prove that it is mastitis or would X-ray definitely determine what causes a hard lump in the breast?

Answer: Certain features differentiate mastitis from cancer and these can be determined by the feel of the lump in most instances. The X-ray shows changes. The final court, of course, is to remove a portion of the lump and put it under the microscope—biopsy.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

CAN BE THE BEST LEAD
NOBODY likes to lead an unbid suit headed by the king, without either the ace or queen accompanying it, especially against a slam bid. In some rare situations, however, the bidding of the opponents cries out so loudly for the suit that a player with courage must open it.

East, a player with real vision, had listened carefully to the bidding of this deal. When North's response of 5-Hearts to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed possession of two aces, East knew that he could have nothing else of importance in the honor line.

North's heart rebid, showing a five-card suit, made it certain that he would have opened the bidding instead of passing on his first turn.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

DIAN AND Bill crossed a grassy stretch of land, and were soon standing looking through the grilled iron gates.

"What a peaceful spot for a last resting place," Bill said.

"Yes," said Dian. "My grandfather had it built."

"And how nice that your grandfather can be so close to the place he loved."

"Yes, it is," Dian agreed. Then she smiled and said, "It was once used as a prison—temporarily, I mean."

"How on earth did that happen?" "Grandfather did it. He caught two tramps pilfering the house, and locked them up in the vault until he could get the sheriff."

"A vault for a jail! That is an idea!" Dian twisted some loose tendrils of ivy about the iron grillwork. "Grandfather loved to tell about the experience," she went on. "He said you should have seen the expressions on the faces of the two men when they realized where they were."

"I don't wonder!" said Bill. "But how did your grandfather capture two men singlehanded?"

"He used his old shotgun—and marched them out here in front of him."

"Boy, I'd like to have been here!" "So would I."

"Did they steal anything?" "They had their pockets full of greenbacks when Grandfather caught them."

"Good Lord, you mean your grandfather kept that much money in this out-of-the-way spot?"

"Yes," said Dian. "In a shoe-box."

"Well, I'll be—"

"But it was Confederate money—left over from the days following the Civil war. The tramps thought the luscious 50 and 100-dollar bills were the real thing."

Bill laughed. "I'll bet their expressions were worth seeing then."

"They were," said Dian. "And then they fainted. Or so Grandfather said. I've always believed that he made up that part of the story."

"Well, even if he did, it makes a good climax."

They stood silent for some moments, looking into the vault. Bill could make out names and dates here and there.

He also noted that there were two unoccupied repositories in the vault. And somehow the sight of them saddened him—gave him a feeling of depression. He found himself thinking of the passage from the Bible which spoke of man being as the grass that withereth. Here today. . . . Gone tomorrow. . . .

"And the place thereof shall know it no more."

"Those two empty places," said Dian as though she were reading his thoughts, "are for Aunt Martha and me."

"Don't!" said Bill huskily. Dian looked at him, puzzled.

"What's the matter?" she asked. "I can't stand the idea of you—being in a place like that."

"But I don't mind," Dian said. "Well, I do. Let's not talk about it."

"It's peaceful out here. You said so yourself."

"Yes, I know I did. Peaceful for others—perhaps—not for you."

"I'm sorry," Dian said. "I didn't know you felt that way about it."

Then Bill rolled his eyes. He had certainly not expected to do. He took Dian in his arms and held her there, close to him. And then he kissed her.

"Why did you do that?" Dian asked when she had freed herself.

"I hardly know," said Bill. It was just that I—I—couldn't bear thinking of you in there—in the vault."

"Oh, I see," said Dian. "You aren't angry, are you?"

"Certainly not," Dian decided to be flippant if it killed her. "It was rather nice—being swept off my feet like that. Living in Ardendale as I do, I seldom get swept off my feet."

Bill looked at her closely. "I don't like hearing you talk like that," he said. "You sound hard. And you're not that sort of girl at heart."

"How do you know what sort of girl I am at heart? You've only known me a few hours."

"Just the same, I don't think you're that sort."

"Did you expect me to burst into tears when you kissed me?"

"Why, no—er—that is—"

"Or perhaps you expected me to be wounded, and say, 'Sir, how dare you!'"

"All right, I'm sorry," said Bill. And again he had a feeling of sadness and desperation.

"Shall we look over the rest of the place?" Dian said, suddenly changing the subject.

"Let's do," said Bill. "If I ever lucky enough to rent the place, I'd want to know all about it."

"Down this way," said Dian, walking off, "is the vegetable garden—although you probably don't know anything about vegetables."

"That's where you're wrong. Believe it or not, I raised some radishes in boxes on the terrace outside my penthouse."

"Imagine! Were they any good?" "I'm afraid I'll have to confess that they were a bit pithy, but I ate them nevertheless. In fact, I served some of them at a cocktail party, along with some other appetizers."

Dian nodded toward a building whose roof was beginning to sag a bit.

"That's the coach house," she said. "Time was, my dear young man, when that sagging roof covered and protected some fine carriages."

"I can believe it, all right," Bill said. "Fine carriages go with a place like this."

"And over there is where the stable once stood," Dian said. "It burned down some years ago. It used to house some beautiful horses to hitch to the fine carriages."

She shrugged. "And now the horses are all gone, and we have only Betsy and her asthma."

She showed Bill the remains of a rose garden, the honeysuckle arbor that was leaning far to the left.

"I had my first proposal in that arbor," she said. "A boy Grandfather hired to help him hoe cotton asked me to marry him, but I had the feeling he was thinking of the farm and not of me."

"Cruel girl!"

"I wouldn't say that," Dian said. "He married another girl who owned a far better farm than this one—or anyway, one that wasn't a white elephant on her hands."

Then she showed Bill the brook. "Boy, what a swimming pool one could have!" said Bill. "Just dam up the brook, and then—"

"Yes, I thought of that," Dian said. "It would cost a pretty penny—so I had to abandon the idea."

"Any trout in the brook?" "Probably."

"Don't you ever come fishing here?"

"You should. Why not try it with me some day?"

"I'm afraid there isn't time. The days are flying, and Claire'll expect you to pay her a lot of attention."

"Yes, I suppose so."

CAMDEN TRACK TO USE BICYCLES AND PIGEONS

CAMDEN, N. J., July 16—The adage of necessity being the mother of invention bore fruit today as officials of Camden's new $2,000,000 Garden State park racing emporium planned to turn back the pages of time and resort to everything from pony-express to carrier pigeons, in order to get track news to the outside world.

The problem of sending out an estimated 200,000 words for the tracks' opening on Saturday was caused by a WPB ban on the use of telegraph connections and telephone service to accommodate 150 newspapermen who are expected to cover the event.

The nearest telegraph offices are in Camden, 4½ miles away, and newspapermen are expected to make the trek by bicycle, motorcycle, automobile, and even on horseback. One Philadelphia paper plans to use carrier pigeons which it has been training for months to carry copy, and another newspaper expects to have its story wigwagged.

Sixteen Golfers Still In Ohio Amateur Meet

CINCINNATI, July 16 — Only 16 of the original 64 qualifiers for the state amateur crown faced the barrier today as a grim reaper weeded out three-fourths of them in two torrid sessions of golf over the Maketewah layout yesterday.

Frankie Stranahan, the 19-year-old kid from Toledo, survived the initial two rounds of play but found that life on the links wasn't all that some pre-tourney enthusiasts had it cracked up to be.

The youthful defending champ was forced 18 holes on each of his two matches, ousting Harvey Young Jr., of Dayton, 3 and 1 in the inaugural and Sonny Startzman of Cincinnati, 1 up in the day's finale.

Maurice McCarthy, three time winner of the classic, waged a terrific battle to regain his laurels he lost on the 38th hole last year to the Toledoan, sweeping by his preliminary opposition in contrasting degrees of ease. J. L. Turvey of Middletown was the first victim, falling hard, 6 and 5, but the Cincinnati was forced to the 21st hole to dispose of fellow townsman, Neil Ransick.

Other survivors of the first two rounds of play included I. B. Isch of Cincinnati; A. J. Marshall, Cincinnati; Bill Podolski, Columbus; Paul Schutte, Cincinnati; Bob Braun, Cincinnati; Doug Hill, Cincinnati; Dave Moes, Lima; Elmer Tunker, Cincinnati; Pete Stuntebeck, Cincinnati; Pete Sohl, Columbus; Harold Paddock, place.

Cleveland; Barney Hunt, Columbus; Tom Whiteway, Cleveland, and Bob Myers, Cincinnati.

After this morning's 18-hole elimination, the event was to swing into the quarter-finals this afternoon.

'BLUE DELIGHT' WINS BIG PURSE FOR HER OWNER

CHICAGO, July 16 — John Marsch, Chicago contractor and sportsman, was plenty glad today he listened to the advice given him by the trainer for his stable, Bury Parke, and Thomas Carr Platt, son of the breeder of the crack Alab.

Marsch had been all set to retire Blue Delight, the daughter of Blue Larkspur-Chicle Light, because of a leg injury she suffered last Fall. With this in mind, he sent Blue Delight to the Kentucky farm of Platt.

But Platt, and then Parke, told and then convinced Marsch that the injury had cleared up enough so the filly, now four years old, could stand another year of racing.

Their confidence was justified yesterday when Blue Delight came home three lengths ahead of the field in the $10,000 added Matron Handicap at Arlington Park and stamped herself as one of the best of the mares and fillies in this part of the country.

This, however, was merely the clincher confirming the judgment of Platt and Trainer Parke, for Blue Delight captured the Cinderella Handicap on her previous outing.

SCHROEDER ADVANCES

NEW YORK, July 16 — Ted Schroeder today was in the quarter-finals of the east clay court championships being played at the Jackson Heights tennis club by virtue of defeat yesterday of the young Miamian, Richard Hart. In a contest which, at times, proved a tight squeeze for the ranking star, Schroeder left the court a victor 5-7, 8-6, 6-2.

Eby Resigns Council; Immediate Move to Name Successor Fails

APPLICATIONS REQUESTED FOR CITY POSITION

METER REPORT ON FILE

Financial Status Of City And Hospital Disclosed To Officials

Resignation of Byron Eby of Gibsonville as a councilman-at-large featured city council meeting Wednesday evening. The council accepted the resignation which stated in a letter that Eby had taken a job in Muskingum county school and would be unable to travel back and forth to council meetings.

Shortly after the vacancy was created Councilman Don Mason stated that he felt it should be filled immediately by the existing members and he nominated C. O. Leist as a candidate for the office. Leist was an unsuccessful candidate in the last election for the office.

Frank Lynch seconded the nomination but immediate objections arose from the other members of council who felt there should be more time in which to consider additional applicants.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon stated that in the interest of the public persons who should like to hold the position should be given an opportunity to file an application with the councilmen. He stated that he felt some members of the group were trying to "railroad" the issue through.

W. E. Wallace also raised an objection to the time granted in which to consider applicants, which was approximately 20 minutes. Mason called for a ballot on the nomination which resulted in two votes for the new member with four members turning in blank ballots. The appointment was lost since it takes a majority to fill the office.

Finances Outlined

A financial report was given by Mr. Lynch who disclosed the following figures for the various city funds as of July 15. General fund, $8,500.70; library fund, $4,153.06; sewage disposal fund, $6,014.88; auto street repair fund, $6,322.30; gasoline tax fund, $3,461.71; hospital fund, $211.11; and defense council fund, $798.20. The total amount in these funds was placed at $29,461.95.

A report on collections from parking meters disclosed total collections to date of $2,257.02, of which $1,525.86 has been paid to the meter company. The balance or profit from the meters in the four and one half months of operation is $731.16. An ordinance was passed at the meeting designating the director of service to be responsible for collecting money from the meters twice a week. The director may name a member of his staff to aid him in the collection of the sealed money tubes. To date the police department has handled the project but the change was made due to a lack of time on the force.

A semi-annual report on Berger hospital was also given at the meeting. Collections for the six month period at the institution were given as $10,096.78 while the expenses were $12,299.02. Charity during the period amounted to $852.66 and receivable accounts total $3,093.30.

To Handle Sewage Plant

After recessing for an hour council came back into session and took action on several measures. During the absence of the superintendent at the disposal plant the group adopted legislation creating a board of four operators to run the plant with one to be named as acting superintendent for the duration of Ervin Leist's absence. This appointee shall receive $150 a month and the other three operators, $125 a month under new terms of the resolution. Leist is now employed at the Lockbourne air base.

After reading the mayor's veto of the recent resolution against street lights council heard the second reading of the appropriation measure and Councilman Boyd Horn made an attempt to pass the measure by suspension of the rules. A ballot on the suspension tied the vote three to three, with President Goeller voting for the suspension. However, the motion was lost since it takes at least six votes to pass a suspension.

An ordinance to provide money for payment of insurance on the sewage disposal plant was also lost when Councilman George Crites refused to approve a suspension of the rules on this measure.

A large delegation of Circleville citizens attended the meeting in an effort to see action on the street lighting question but defi-

Five More U. S. Aviators Are Given Silver Stars

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 16—Five more American flying officers were decorated for gallantry in action today on recommendation of Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, commander-in-chief of allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

Awards of silver stars were made to Lieut. Donald Mitchell of Evanston, Ill., Lieut. Dean Dammit, Capt. Nathaniel Blanton of Earlboro, Okla., Capt. Joseph Kruzel of Wilkes Barre, Pa., and Capt. Walter Coos of New Brighton, Pa.

Lieut. Mitchell was seriously injured in the action which won him the silver star. He piloted a bomber over the Japanese base at Lae, New Guinea, and persisted in making his run and dropping bombs on the assigned target despite an attack by 20 Japanese zero fighter planes.

Mitchell's ship was damaged and was forced to make a crash landing in which he was badly injured. The citation praised his "determination, bravery and devo-

TWO MORE APPLICATIONS FOR DIVORCE ARE FILED

Two applications for divorce were filed in Common Pleas court Wednesday afternoon. Stella Mumaw is seeking a decree from Leonard Mumaw on grounds of neglect. The couple was married December 7, 1938, and has no children. The Mumaws have resided at 133 York street. The plaintiff asks that her maiden name of Patterson be restored.

Jesse Riley has filed suit against Dorothy Riley for gross neglect. This couple was married March 28, 1938, has no children. The residence given as 226 Walnut street.

ENLISTMENT FOR ARMY AUXILIARY CORPS NEARS

COLUMBUS, July 16—Enlistment of women for the ranks of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps will be started probably Monday, Capt. M. S. Wilkinson, director of WAAC recruiting at Fort Hayes, reported today.

Successful applicants, who will become privates in the auxiliary, must be citizens of the United States between the ages of 21 and 45, must have good character and must pass physical examinations and intelligence tests, Capt. Wilkinson said.

Final approval or rejection will have to be taken at the next meeting.

As the situation now stands, the night lights will not be turned on until council passes its appropriation ordinance, a final vote to be in order at the next meeting.

A complaint was received by the group on sanitary sewers in residences. The question was referred to the safety director and the city board of health.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

on sales of government grain at below parity prices.

But good as his speech was, the senator failed to tell the whole story. He omitted saying that the House action was taken after one of the slickest pieces of parliamentary finagling in the memory of veteran members.

Inside fact is that the "compromise" measure was cooked up in a star-chamber meeting, called by Representative Clarence Cannon of Missouri, Appropriations chairman and leader of the House farm bloc, to which three of the House conferees were not invited. The three uninvited were Representatives Charles Leavy of Washington, David Terry of Arkansas and Ross Collins of Mississippi. In meetings with Senate conferees on the deadlocked farm bill, this trio had supported the President's position that the sale of government-owned grain, for livestock feeding, is necessary to insure adequate supplies of meat for our armed forces.

Speaker Sam Rayburn also was present at the secret meeting, as were one other Democrat, Representative Malcolm Tarver of Georgia, and all three House Republican conferees, Representative Dirksen of Illinois, Lambertson of Kansas and Plumley of Vermont.

INFLATION DANGER

However, the speaker took no part in drafting the new bill, tried to dissuade Cannon from retaining the grain sales ban, pointing out that there was small hope of getting Senate agreement to this. Rayburn also reminded Cannon that the President was greatly concerned about inflationary dangers in such legislation.

But the bull-headed Missourian refused to budge, and other members supported him. Later, Representative Leavy of Washington hotly protested to Cannon about being excluded from the meeting. "I am one of the House conferees and had a right to be there," said Leavy. "I didn't know anything about the bill until just before it was brought up on the floor. Aren't we observing democratic processes in the House any more?"

"I'm very sorry you were left out, Charlie," purred Cannon. "I thought you had gone back to Washington to take over that judgeship to which you were appointed."

NOTE: Cannon and Dirksen are jokingly known on the Hill as the chief "errand boys" of Earl Smith, Roosevelt-hating chief of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Illinois and the man behind the scenes in prohibiting sales of surplus commodities held in government bins. Smith, instead of Ed O'Neal of Alabama, national president, is the real boss of the AFBF.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Despite Leon Henderson's hectic crusade to keep a price ceiling on all foods, there is one ceiling he is going to raise immediately—canned crab meat. Reason is that before Pearl Harbor most canned crab meat came from Tokyo. So the price Henderson originally set was based on cheap Jap labor. Now it will be raised to meet American labor standards. "Whenever I come to Washington," says Walter Winchell, "I am amazed at the number of big men supposed to be working for the country who spend their time working against each other." ... Opening prayer in the Senate was offered recently not by a clergyman but by a member of the U. S. Senate itself—Berkeley L. Bunker of Nevada, a former bishop in the Mormon church. ... Mrs. Herbert Bayard Swope, asked what the War department was doing to her dynamic ex-editor husband, replied: "It isn't a question of what the War department does to Herbert, it's what he does to the War department."
